| The Story of The Silver Beaver

In 1931, the Boy Scout of America's National Vice President, Mortimer L. Schiff, impressed with the values recognized by the Silver Buffalo Award, recommended an award recognizing distinguished service to youth in a local council. Introduced as a pin-on medal, it was switched to a neck ribbon medal due to the heavy weight of the medallion.

The Silver Beaver was initially awarded only to men. The Silver Fawn Award, an equivalent for women, was awarded starting in 1971. It used the same knot insignia, but on a blue background, as women were mostly involved in Cub Scouting. The Silver Fawn was discontinued in 1974, when the Silver Beaver began to also be awarded to women. A total of 2,455 Silver Fawns were awarded to outstanding women before the award was discontinued.

Nominations made by local councils are approved by the National Court of Honor. These awards are given on a highly restricted basis: One award may be given each year for every 60 units in the council. Nationwide, about 800 awards are given annually.

Today, the Silver Beaver is awarded for noteworthy service of exceptional character to youth by registered Scouters, Cub Scouters and Venturing leaders within the territory of a local council.

Nominations for the Silver Beaver awards are accepted each fall.
